FireFiles Spotlighted in Law Enforcement Technology Magazine

During the June 2003 issue of Law Enforcement Technology Magazine, FireFiles Fire & Arson Investigation Software is presented as the “industry standard for fire investigation case management”. The magazine approached Albanese Consulting, Inc., the development team that stands behind and supports FireFiles, earlier in 2003 after learning about the software through the International Association of Arson Investigators. The June 2003 issue compiles a buyers’ guide of products that service a wide range of needs in the law enforcement arena, from canine equipment to body armor.

In conjunction with Law Enforcement Technology Magazine, www.law-enforcement.com offers an online portal for law enforcement officers to search and find similar product offerings. Albanese Consulting recently launched its FireFiles software on this popular online listing to attract interest from a new set of prospects. Matt Gvazdinkas, Sales Director at Albanese Consulting, states, “We have traditionally marketed FireFiles within a very tight niche of trade organizations and publications that are targeted at fire and arson investigators. What we have learned over the course of the past few years is that FireFiles is a product that has been discussed among a much larger body of law enforcement and political officials in an effort to help better their communities. This is a good fit, and FireFiles looks forward to a long and mutually beneficial relationship with Cygnus.”
